

Pool fencing!

Does This Look Like Fun?

An unfenced pool like this one is a drowning waiting to happen!

You must empty
the water when un-attended or fence it in!

What to take to the pool!

A guide to pool toys

- Pool toys are used for water play

- Pool toys are not safety devices

- Pool toys do not replace adult supervision

Pool Toys

There are many different types of pool toys such as noodles, dive rings, kickboards, beach balls and floaties.

Things such as floaties or noodles can make children seem more confident in the water and provide a false sense of security when it comes to the child's ability in the water.

It is NEVER safe to leave a child unattended in a pool or pool area.

Although pool toys present dangers around water they can also be used to save lives.

In emergency situations pool toys can be used to reach or throw out to aide in rescuing someone in need.

Sun and chemical exposure, such as chlorine and salts, can deteriorate pool equipment making them unsafe to use in the water.

Common Pool Signs

Not safe to dive!

Adult supervision!

Follow pool rules!

Never run around pools

Never assume kids are ok!

Is an adult supervising?
Can the boy get in?
Is the girl drowning?
How do you know?
Is she facing you?

Pool toys DO NOT replace supervision
